COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Work on the Dutch Elm Control is progressing well. The public trees that are infected have been cut in several sections of town. Wood and brush from these trees is being removed as fast as possible. We have been fortunate to be allowed to sell some of the wood and realize income from it.

The Shade Tree Committee held a meeting April 20. It was decided to plant 17 trees on the Common and one at the Civil War monument. All these trees will be Norway maple. There will be no spraying or stump removal work done this year unless there is money left after infected trees are cut and brush removed.

There have been several persons in the office to look at the soil suitability maps I mentioned last week. These maps cannot be taken from the office. In this column before I unintentionally gave the impression there were maps available for distribution, which is not true. There is just one copy of each.

"ONE-STOP SERVICE" TO INFORM COMMUNITIES OF DEVELOPMENT AIDS

Steps have been taken under a directive from President Johnson to assure that rural communities in Oxford County have access to all existing services in their development efforts, Chairman Elwyn R. Morrow of the county's Technical Action Panel says.

Mr. Morrow, who also is the County Supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration, said the system will be operated through the Technical Action Panel. The county TAP will serve as a central, "one-stop" source of information on programs available to rural communities that might help them solve economic problems and develop community facilities.

The system has been ordered to carry out a Presidential order that Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman "put the facilities of the Department of Agriculture field offices at the disposal of all Federal agencies to assist them in making their programs effective in rural areas."

Mr. Morrow said it will advance the Agricultural Department's "outreach program, designed to insure that rural community needs are not overlooked, and that rural people know of programs available to them both through the Department of Agriculture and other agencies."

The Oxford County Technical Action Panel included local officials of Department of Agriculture agencies (Farmers Home Administration, Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) as well as the Extension Service and a representative of the Maine Forest Service.

Local organizations concerned with community advancement will be able to determine through the county TAP whether a federal, state, local or private agency can help with a project that cannot be carried out solely with local resources.

Mr. Morrow said county office representatives of any of the agencies represented on the Technical Action Panel can initiate action on an inquiry. They include Lyman Jacobson, Soil Conservation Service; William Chapman, Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service; Russell Clark, Extension Service, all of South Paris; and Gerald Trundy, Maine Forest Service, of Hiram.

Timothy Hutchins arrived home today for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Hutchins, following a month tour of duty in the North Atlantic aboard the U. S. Coast Guard cutter, Machinar.

OCMHA TO SEEK PERSONNEL FOR MENTAL HEALTH CLINICS IN COUNTY

Oxford County Mental Health Association directors have turned their efforts toward recruiting personnel for the Mental Health clinics in Oxford County.

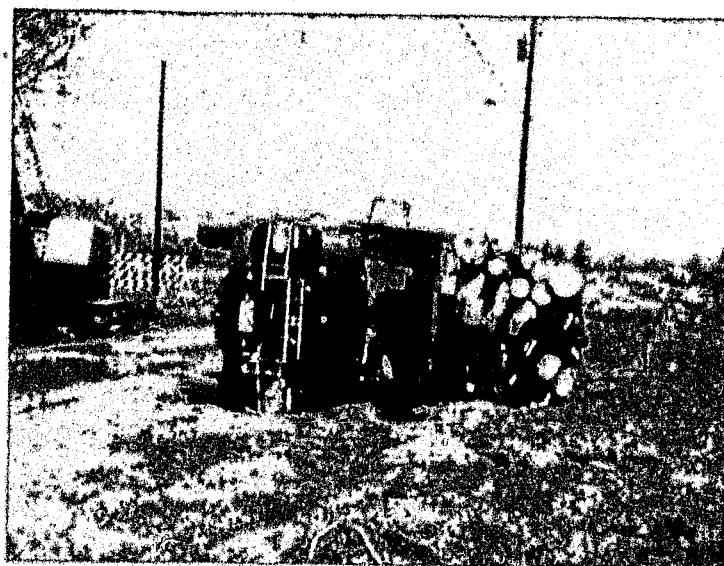

The results of town meetings show that 29 towns in Oxford County appropriated funds to support the proposed clinics. $3,610 was appropriated out of $6,000 requested and Secretary-Treasurer, Arthur N. Gouin, Jr., said that the remaining $2,390 will be coming in from different sources to insure that the $6,000 will be available to match state and federal funds.

Some contacts have been made with mental personnel and other efforts will be made to attract professionals to Oxford County.

May is Mental Health Month and the Norway-Paris Jaycees have responded to this by planning a "Las Vegas Night" on May 6 at the South Paris Legion Hall with the proceeds going to Oxford County Mental Health Association to support services. Any organization wishing to undertake a project for mental health may do so.

MRS. BROWN'S PUPILS ENTERTAIN

Piano students of Mrs. Donald Brown entertained their mothers Saturday, April 15, at the home of their teacher.

After a varied program of piano numbers, Mrs. Brown spoke briefly on the life of Dr. William Rogers Chapman, who for thirty years, beginning in 1897, conducted the Maine Music Festivals in Bangor and Portland, bringing to these annual festivals some of the greatest artists in the world to appear with his chorus and orchestra.

Born in Hanover, Mass., Dr. Chapman spent his boyhood in Bethel later returning to spend his summers, and during the latter part of his life to spend nearly all of his time at his home here at the head of Main Street.

It was interesting to the music students to learn that Dr. Chapman knew so many famous people about whom they've read, and that he once played for the famous pianist, Franz Liszt.

Students taking part in the program were Mary Ann Chapin, Debra Buck, Ellen Clark, Susan, Michael, and Betsy Davis, Christine and Ellen Greenleaf, Kathy Young, Sam Eames, and Tommy Coolidge.

WATCH FOR CHILDREN AS YOU DRIVE

As you drive this spring, remember the children, urged Jack Atwood, chairman of the Maine Highway Safety Committee. They become a big part of the street scene beginning in early spring. They are everywhere, on bikes, pushing carts, playing from between parked cars, chasing balls into the street.

Except when they fly into the street, it is easy to forget they are there because they are so familiar a part of the street, and this is why their lives are so often endangered, he said.

The best precaution to take is to make a special point of watching for children as you drive, every time you drive, the safety chairman continued. And you can always expect children to do the unexpected.

A child killed in a traffic accident dies painfully, brutally, every bit as brutally as the innocent child killed in war. The innocents, too are very similar to those found in war.

A good motto to drive by might be, "Drive for the children's sake, whether they are in the car or out of it."

In most cases of children killed in traffic, the adult is at fault. First, there are the many hundreds who are killed while passengers in cars. Then there are those killed on bicycles or when running into the street—and although the child here may make the initial error, it should be accepted that the adult has the primary responsibility for the safety of children.

Treat every child as a caution. Jack Atwood concluded.

20 SECONDS WITH THE NAZARENE

There is no synthetic replacement for a decent home life. Our high crime rate, particularly among juveniles, is directly traceable to a breakdown in moral fibre—to the disintegration of home and family life. Religion and home life are supplementary. Each strengthens the other. It is seldom that a solid and wholesome home life can be found in the absence of religious inspiration.

INDEPENDENT BUSINESS GROUP FAVORS ABOLITION OF ELECTORAL COLLEGE

In favor of the nation's independent business proprietors are concerned, the electoral method of electing a President of the United States should be scrapped in favor of the election being based on a majority of the popular vote by the population as a whole.

This is reflected in the result of a nationwide poll just completed by the National Federation of Independent Business on Senate Joint Resolution No. 2, by Senator Birch Bayh, Ind., which would amend the constitution to affect this change in the method of electing.

The results show 75 per cent in favor, 10 per cent opposed, with seven per cent undecided.

In Maine, the vote was 82 per cent in favor, 14 per cent opposed, with four per cent undecided.

This proposed change in the national election law is expected to create a great deal of interest. The opposition viewpoint appears to base its position on the belief that such a method would destroy the two-party system and open the door for formation of other parties.

Supporters, who contend the present system weakens the smaller states claim that 90 per cent of the respondents to a poll

A SALUTE TO EXPO 67
After many months of preparation, Maine is ready to show its wares to the millions who are expected to visit Expo 67 which opens April 28 at Montreal.

This observer expects that the money we have spent for a building, personnel and so forth will prove to be a good investment.

There are several reasons for this prediction. For example, this is a first-category world exhibition as designated by the International Exhibitions Bureau, the governing body in such matters. The New York World's Fair or the one at Seattle were not in that category. As a consequence, no less than 70 nations will have pavilions at Montreal. We believe this will be an all-time record.

Thus Expo 67 should be a powerful attraction, indeed.

Currently, only three states have seen fit to take advantage of advertising with such distinguished company—Maine, Vermont and New York. That, in itself, should call more than the ordinary amount of attention to us.

Maine's decision to stick to a traditional architectural form in the construction of its building may turn out to have been a wise move. Indeed. Obviously, we could not have spent the millions of dollars that many countries have spent for their pavilions, and to have attempted to copy the ultra-modernistic design that will be so prevalent would have made us only a small pebble on a large beach. The different aspect that we present will no doubt prove to be even more eye-catching than the most optimistic had hoped.

When the Colonial motif for our building was first proposed there were a few who thought that we would be accused of living in the past, but that is hardly so. The grace and beauty of what is sometimes loosely called Colonial architecture is at once as old as yesterday and as new as tomorrow.

It is generally conceded that our investment in the recent

New York World's Fair was a good one, and, if so, our stake in Expo 67 should prove to be even better. Where one person traveled southward through Maine to visit New York, we would guess that at least five will make the trek to Montreal.

It would seem that the Maine Department of Economic Development has done all that could be expected of any such organization to make our Montreal venture a success. Its relations with Expo 67 officials have been most cordial and have resulted in promotional tie-ins of great value that otherwise might not have been forthcoming. Our building will be staffed with bilingual attendants, well-briefed on the type of questions visitors will ask. The building's exhibits will be attractive and interesting.

The proposal to have a building at Expo 67, and the money to conduct the operation, came from our state Legislature. It has been a bipartisan venture all the way. One of the many heart-warming examples of how men and women can work together regardless of party lines or other considerations for the good of Maine.

We, of course, with our close Canadian friends the utmost to success for their inspiring adventure. We will do our best to work with them toward that end.

We are going to boast a bit about Maine potatoes. We were growing potatoes to feed the nation when some areas were still in the land-clearing territory.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

Facts About Dutch Elm Disease

Now that with the promise of Spring, our thumbs begin to turn green and we wonder why the elms are being cut down—even though they had leaves last August and Summer.

Talking with many of the townsfolk in the course of removing these trees has made me realize that many people do not understand or mis-understand the reasons for cutting these trees down. What we are doing is cutting off a finger to save the arm! To explain this statement I'll present the facts and then let them talk together, in hopes that it will clear up these misunderstandings.

All American and European elms are susceptible. Trees of all ages can be killed. The rate of killing is highest in a locality where the disease first reaches epidemic proportions. Therefore many trees in Bethel are now affected.

The effects of the disease vary from slight discoloring of the leaves through various stages of yellowing and degrees of defoliation to death of branches or the entire tree. Thus it was given last year's elms not mean it is not so bad as it appeared. The rate of killing varies from one to ten percent, depending on the stage of the disease.

The fungus is transmitted from diseased to healthy trees largely by insects. The adult beetles emerge in Spring from under the bark of dead or dying stems inadvertently carrying the sticky spores of the fungus on their bodies. Again, another reason to eliminate dead or dying trees. After emergence the beetles usually feed on nearby healthy trees, chewing through the bark into the sap stream, introducing the fungus to the healthy unaffected tree. We can spray for these beetles prior to emergence, but this is against public opinion. It is costly, and only effective if followed out with a program of sanitation.

1. Removing dead or dying trees or limbs.

The fungus can be also transmitted by root grafts. Since root grafts between elms are common, it is likely that infection frequently spreads this way. So if two trees originate from a common root system it is obvious that if one is affected the other should be affected.

2. Knowing how the disease affects the elm, how it is transmitted, we can observe some elms that are commonly misdiagnosed.

3. Following well and control the fungus and the insect vectors.

4. To date there are no known cures that control the fungus and the insect vectors. Spraying will produce better results, however.

5. Pruning trees, cutting out dead or dying limbs, and a limited spray for the insect, will not help at all with probably harm.

6. If D. D. can be controlled it takes time and money—Less money, more time.

With these facts and my comments it becomes quite obvious that we the citizens of Bethel, with a limited budget, can effectively combat D. E. D. through a program of sanitation, and preserve the remaining trees if we push in and remove the sources of infection. The Town is doing its part by implementing a sound program. If the individual home owner would help by removing limbs that show the symptoms described (it has samples for laboratory tests if a doubt exists), Bethel will be on its way toward preserving one of its largest assets—the American Elm.
